Key Trends in Housing and Demographics

• Housing cost burden for renters and especially owners has increased substantially. The number of cost-burdened owners with mortgages jumped in the last five years from 26% to 40%. Cost-burdened renters increased from 30% to 46%.

• The citywide Median Income shows a 9.4% decrease from 2000 Census.

• While incomes remained stagnant, median home prices increased 65% in the last five years. Median rent levels increased by 27%.

• Housing units increased by approximately 17,000 units. Yet the city lost over 71,000 rental units in five years. The city also stands to lose an additional 8,000 federally subsidized units in just three years when their contracts expire.

• Poverty level in the city was 21.6% in 1990. In 2005, the poverty rate has increased back to 1990 levels.

• The number of new housing units built in the last five years is almost double the number of units built in the decade between 1990-2000. Yet the vacancy rate has increased from 7.9% to 12.8% and rental vacancy nearly doubled from 5.7% in 2000 to 9.4%

• Population mobility in both the 2000 and 2005 showed more than half of all occupied households in Chicago moved to their current residence in the last 5 years. In 2000, one-third of households moved to their current residence prior to 1990. In 2005, this number dropped to less than a quarter.

• Population decreased overall since 2000. The White and African American population in the city has decreased by 14% and 10% respectively. The Asian and Hispanic populations have increased.
